Narrative of incident - if needed:

me and other female students on campus very uncomfortable. They park outside of Residential housing in their red pickup truck, typically in mid-morning hours and stand there and stare at the females walking past. Personally I feel extremely disgusted and angered by this situation as I am a paying student that is here to simply get an education in a safe environment. This same problem occurred last year. They, the same 2 men, would park outside of my dorm almost every morning and sit/stand there and stare. I am not saying that they are following me, however, it is very odd that they would be parked outside of my apartment complex now almost every morning doing the same things. I have asked several female students, some friends and some acquaintances, and they all notice the same thing and feel the same way. I just wish that they would focus more on their job and less on the females walking past them.
