2 | The Strategic Plan
Francis Marion University

About the University

Francis Marion University is one of South Carolina’s 13 public universities. It’s also one of the state’s six comprehensive institutions, and it prides itself on providing students with a strong liberal arts education.

Francis Marion, named for the eponymous Revolutionary War hero, was founded in 1970, though its roots extend back some time before that as a branch of the University of South Carolina. The college is located on a beautiful wooded campus – some regard it as the most scenic in South Carolina – on 468 acres just east of Florence.

The college’s mission has always focused on educating South Carolinians, especially the sons and daughters of the Pee Dee Region. More than 95 percent of FMU’s student body comes from South Carolina. Francis Marion has always been responsive to its community. In recent years, that’s meant launching new programs to support local industry and creating organizations and structures that enhance culture and public life.
Francis Marion University Strategic Plan

1. Academic Focus
   Francis Marion University is a comprehensive public institution offering students an advanced education in academic disciplines and professions based on a strong liberal arts foundation.

2. Student Body
   While maintaining its commitment to educating students from the Pee Dee region, Francis Marion University must incrementally increase its enrollment from other areas of South Carolina, as well as nationally and internationally.

3. Arts & Culture
   Francis Marion University will enrich the artistic and cultural experiences of its students and the surrounding community.

4. Student Development
   Francis Marion University will maintain and expand a variety of student support services, as well as provide opportunities for students to develop interpersonal and leadership skills.

5. Campus Governance
   Francis Marion University's future success depends upon the cooperation and cohesion of the faculty, staff, administration and students in collectively addressing needs and supporting its mission.

6. Community Relations
   Francis Marion University must strive to identify, understand and accommodate the community and foster collaboration to achieve University and community growth.

7. Physical Campus
   Francis Marion University must maintain and expand its physical facilities to preserve their beauty and to enhance the viability and environmental sustainability of the campus.
